West Sends Protests On E. Berlin Seal-Off

RED TROOPS EASE OUT

BERLIN (CP) - Reuters News Agency said today Communists appeared to be withdrawing some of their troops and armored vehicles from East Berlin.

About 40 army trucks loaded with police and factory workers militiamen were seen driving out of East Berlin early today. Fifteen tanks which were drawn up near the Marx-Engels Square in East Berlin were withdrawn Monday night.

- Barriers put up on Sunday around the main railroad freight station in East Berlin also were taken down and the number of police on duty in the streets appeared to be much smaller than Monday.

Militiaman Flees

BERLIN (AP)-An East Berlin factory militiaman in full uniform, his steel helmet hanging from his belt, fled to the West today.

His family fled several days ago and he was waiting his chance when the Communists shut down the East-West Berlin border Sunday.

Police said he sneaked up to the border behind an advertising sign and then made a quick run for it.

To Keep Out Spies

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Press said today that the East Berlin, border was sealed to keep Western "spies and subversives" out of East Germany.

It said East German workers are "thankful to the gov-ment for defending their peaceful labor from encroach-

The press launched an all-out campaign to explain the reasons behind the border closing to readers, many of them frankly confused and worried by the situation. Nowhere was the eastern refugee flow to West Berlin mentioned.

Treaty Russian Price?

LONDON (UPI)—Moscow radio said East Germany will reopen its borders "when peaceful settlement with Germany is reached."

The broadcast appeared to indicate that the price for an open border would be acquiescence to Soviet demands that the Western powers sign a peace treaty with East Germany, thus granting recognition to the satellite regime

Western 'War Hysteria'

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda told the Russian people to-day a new outburst of war hysteria has gripped the West since the closing of the East-West Berlin city border.

In an editorial by V. Menshikov, the Communist party newspaper asserts that West Germany "threatens to be-come NATO's main force in unleashing a new world war."

More Industrial Aid

COLOGNE (AP) - West German industry will increase its aid to the West Berlin economy in response to sharper division of the city by Communist authorities, the German Industry Institute announced today.

Institute president Fritz Berg, who is already in consultation with West German government officials in Bonn, will travel to West Berlin later in the week to see what help will be most useful, it said.

Illegal Tactics Charged to Reds

(Times News Services)

The Western powers protested sharply to Soviet authorities today against the increasing Communist restrictions splitting East and West Berlin and began study of retaliatory measures to back up their words with action.

British, American and French military commanders in West Berlin sent sharply-worded notes to the Soviet com-mander protesting the "illegal measures" taken by the puppet East German regime to restricted travel within the divided Nations, suggested today that the United States set up a "free world high command" to meet the Communist diplomatic offensive on qual terms. Lodge, the Republican nominee for vice-president in the 1960 election, said the "high command" should be patterned after the allied joint chiefs of staff in the Second World War. He was one of a quartet of Eisenhower administration of ficials who urged congress to grant President Kennedy's request for a separate government agency to deal with disarmament.

SALISBURY, N.C.—Insurance adjuster Ever-ette Beaver said Monday his company paid off when a client told this story of how his automobile was damaged in an accident:

The man said he had been fishing in South Carolina and was placing his catch in the back seaf of the automobile. A horse grazing near the pond ambled over and looked through the open window.

One of the fish flopped over, the man reported, and startled horse withdrew his head, breaking the automobile's window.

At this point, Beaver was told, the angry animal kicked in the rear fender and tall light before withdrawing. The insurance claim, Beaver said, "was so ridiculous it had to be true" and the company reimbursed the owner.

WITH THE OPENING of the Hood Canal Floating Bridge, August 12, the splendor of the Olympic Peninsula comes within easy access of the mainland.

Sport fishing, hiking, camping and breath-taking views of the rugged Olympic Range move closer in travel time.

Any of four restful ferry cruises from the mainland bring you to scenic highways connecting with the Hood Canal Bridge, convenient new link to the wonders of the Olympic Peninsula.

From downtown Seattle, you may board either the ferry to Winslow, on Bainbridge Island, or to Bremerton. Highway routes from these two cities merge a few miles before reaching the ner floating bridge. From the southern area of Seattle, the Fauntleroy to Vashon-Southworth ferry joins the highway to Bremerton. From northern Seattle, the Edmonds ferry offers a swift connection with Kingston, only nine miles from the Hood Canal Bridge.

24-HOUR SERVICE TO WINSLOW

Now, round-the-clock service has been added between downtown Seattle and Winslow, serving Bainbridge Island, Agate Pass and the Hood Canal Floating Bridge.

The Prospects of Business satisfactory signs of business recovery in Canada, part of it under way months ago as a result of im-provement in the United States, and part apparently due to the devalua-tion of the Canadian dollar.

At first sight this good news seems to be confirmed by the mid-year review of the Department of Trade and Commerce which esti-mates capital expenditures in all sectors of the Canadian economy for 1961 at $8.4 billions. This would be an increase of about 3 per cent over investments last year and some $100 millions higher than the government's estimate at the first of the present year.

But such figures do not tell the whole story. A second look shows that the investments of private business actually are falling and will be about 1 per cent lower than they were in 1960. To be sure, the prospects of private investment appear better now than the government predicted at the beginning of 1961 when they were expected to fall by 3 per cent, but it is disturbing, at this point, that they should decline

The small increase in total Canadian investment is due entirely to the capital expenditures of govern-

THERE ARE IMPRESSIVE AND ment at all levels. They will rise by nearly 8 per cent over last year. The Galbraithian economists who demand more spending in the public sector will welcome such figures and no doubt they will provide, from the ederal government down to the local municipality, some valuable amenities of many kinds.

It must be remembered, how-ever, as The Globe and Mail of Toronto remarks, that "this is not creative capital; it will not help to produce more wealth. Then, too, there is the thought that someone has to pay the bill and this becomes a harder job when business and industry are not forging ahead." So long as a nation is increasing its investment only in the public sector and reducing it in the private sector it cannot be satisfied with the progress of its business. While public investment indeed serves, in part anyway, to compensate for slack employment in private indus-try, the national economy still remains in a stagnant condition as a whole when rapid growth is required to employ our growing population. The important question to be answered in the last half of the year is whether the private sector, the great employer, is really expanding

More Dubious Still

Further study of the board's report makes it look more dubious

It is not difficult to understand why the federal government cannot accept the report — or why our friends in the Pacific Northwest states are deeply concerned over the provincial government's position on the power schemes.

The report states frankly that, in estimating unit costs for Columbia development, no consideration has been given to flood control pay-ments by the United States to Canada. Nor is the increased power that could be developed by Cominco and West Kootenay Power Com-pany generating stations considered tor in the cost.

This is contrary to the practice followed by other competent engineers who have studied the Colum-These engineers say that consideration must be given to such factors. They are ingredients in any honest cost estimate on Columbia power. They are factors auto-matically tied in to Columbia development including the regulated streamflow which would be estab-lished on the Kootenay by the lished on the Kootenay by the Libby dam in the United States. The Energy Board rejects this reasoning because, it says, of the "uncertainty as to how the Cominco long term requirements for power are to be met," because "decisions method of estimating the results, favorable or unfavorable, on the private generating stations created by regulation of streamflow of the Kootenay River"; and because "The o compensate British Columbia for the loss to the provincial economy of the flooded areas in the East Kootenays

On the face of it, the first two reasons might reflect a difference in engineering opinion. It will be noted, of course, that the B.C. Beyond the Pale

THE FORMAL COURT TRIAL of Adolf Eichmann has come to an end and the three Jewish judges will consider the evidence and render a judgment in Novem-

The counsel for the defence based his closing arguments on several points-among them that the court was not competent to try Eichmann since the Jewish nation did not exist at the time of the alleged crimes; that Eichmann had not been responsible for Jewish deaths; that he had been bound in what he did by military duty.

He concluded with a plea that the case be closed and Eichmann released, that there was nothing further to be done.

Probably no man has ever appeared in the dock with a heavier weight of public pre-judgment against him than Adolf Eichmann. The nature of the charges is so enormous-the murder of six million human beings in the most brutal and horrible way—that even to associate an accused person's name with the crime is to arouse human disgust and anger against him.

Whether or not Eichmann is found guilty—and this is entirely in the hands of the judges now—it is difficult to conceive of a proper difficult to conceive d

Could imprisonment meet the ds of the case? Torture? A needs of the case? Torture? A lingering death? These seem so insignificant against the background of incredible suffering. But by the same reasoning, there can be no place among the human race for an individual who had so turned against ble greefer. against his species.

And the fact should not be forgotten-that Eichmann stood in court, not only for himself, but as representative of all those supported him and worked with him, as a product of the system that evolved him, as an example of the intolerance, brutality and bestiality that can exist in some measure in all mankind and come to the surface in its less worthy members. The Jewish judges have an un-enviable task. But they are making history, even as the Nazis in their own way made it. They cannot right wrongs, but they may be able, in some small measure, to establish a lasting reminder to the world that The Long, Hot Summer

THE serial nightmare which is modern weapons development now has a potential new chapter. Nikita S. Khrush-chev has boasted that he can build a super H-bomb in the 100 megaton range. It was finally decided in February, 1958, when the leaders of the "soft school" were purged, their followers made to recant, and Herr Ulbricht emerged on top again.

Since 1958 it has been "building socialism" again with a vengeance: closed frontiers, forcible total collectivization and made madely accelerations promy. This time It is now taking a new turn for the worse with the attempted transition to open terror on the part of the ruling Communists, It contains explosive posand raised working norms. This time the policy took longer to break down;

It was at first helped by economic, improvement (1959 was probably, from a purely economic viewpoint, the best postwar year in East Germany). It also met a widespread mood of tiredness and resignation.

But perhaps it was just this which encouraged Herr Ulbricht to push mat-ters too far. From the spring of this year the storm signals began multiplying again: food shortages, breakdown of the plan, dissensions in the Politburo, then the admission of a crisis in the newly collectivized agriculture and the beginning of a peasants' movement to walk out of the collective farms again. Refugee figures, which had been at a monthly average of 12,000 in 1959, 15,000 in 1960, crept up towards 20,000. Then came Herr Ulbricht's decisive psychological mistake; the announcement that he would totally close access to Berlin and thereby the last remaining escape hole before the end of this year.

This started the panic flight, which is still in full spate. Since early July, more than 1,000 people have fled every The daily figures are now nearer

This flight itself increases the crisis because it hits the already overstrained economy. It is doubtful that the East German economy could bear many months of this in its present and feeble

Those that stay behind may prove more dan-gerous to Herr Ulbricht than those that go; especially if Ulbricht, as it appears, knows of no other reaction to the present warning signals than increased

Other Methods

What forms the East German crisis may yet take is unpredictable. Since fective methods of resistance than an open mass rising have been practiced in various countries, and it would be surprising if an intelligent people like the Germans had not learned some lesns from them.

An open question is the reliability of lice and armed forces parative ineffectiveness of the present seemingly impenetrable road blocks and train controls around Berlin suggests secret sympathies with the refugees among the police.

What is certain is that East Germany is in a state of ferment and that Herr Ulbricht, at the very moment when he was about to throw himself into a political offensive against the West, has had to try to get his own people under control again. Moreover, in doing so, he is acting in a rather panicky manner.

Herr Ulbricht is a man with a strong paranoid streak. He has little sense of reality. Walking forward blindly be Eighty-five per cent of this amount India from their meagre resources-from their per capita weekly income of less than $2. The remainder came through foreign aid.

A mere $2.2 billion per year spent from 1951 to 1961 may seem to be a small amount since the U.S., with less than half the population of India, spends almost that much in one week for the people of India, whose living standards are pathetically low, it has been a tremendous sacrifice—as painful as people could be asked to make in a Progress under the first two plans been slow, but there is sufficient evidence to show that the money spent in India has not gone down the drain.

The per capita income has been raised from $50 in 1947 to $70 per year in 1961; the average life expectancy has been increased from 27 years in 1947 to 42 years in 1961.

Obvious Interest

Apart from the humanitarian and economic reasons, the Western stake in the Indian struggle is quite obvlous; with a population of 440 million, increasing at a rate of 8 million per year, India represents one-third of the uncommitted world.

The survival of democracy in southeast Asia, or perhaps in the world, de-pends to a large extent on the survival of democracy in India. She has the leadership, the manpower, the raw materials and enough of the other prerequisites for a steady development but she lacks one without which her hopes and aspirations can be frustrated. She lacks the capital.

But under self-imposed austerity she can muster up $17 billion out of a total of $22 billion required for carrying out the Third Five-Year Plan.

She is counting on the more pros-perous countries of the West to supply the remaining $5 billion, or $1 billion

Perhaps they won't have to forget university after all

IS THE HIGH COST OF HIGHER EDUCATION CLOSING THE DOOR ON YOUR HOPES FOR YOUR CHILDREN?

You have added up what they can earn themselves and what you can do to help. You may even be counting on a scholarship or bursary as well. Yet it's still not enough . . .

Often the extra amount you need is heartbreakingly small. Yet it is big enough to make the difference between university and - no university. And this at a time when our youth and our country both have greater need than ever for trained minds, specialized knowledge.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA HAS TAKEN STEPS TO HELP MEET THIS MAJOR PROBLEM THROUGH SPECIAL UNIVERSITY TUITION LOANS.

Usually, these loans will be made to parents, guardians or sponsors of students attending or planning to attend Canadian universities and colleges.

They are available in amounts up to $1,000 a year through four years.

Repayment may be arranged over a flonger period than usual. In special cases, it may even be extended beyond the four-year university period. In other words, these University Tuition Loans are set up on a flexible basis, on relatively liberal terms, to permit as many people as possible to take advantage of them.

A ROYAL BANK OF CANADA UNIVERSITY TUITION LOAN MAY BE THE ANSWER TO YOUR PROBLEM.

We believe this supplementary financial help will keep the door to the university open for many parents who are wondering if higher education for their children is beyond their reach. The Royal Bank, and your Royal Bank manager, share your concern in this personal and national problem. We , invite you to come in and see whether a Royal Bank University Tuition Loan may not be the solution.

The seniors had the Victoria Golf Club course Monday, and the likes of Blakely, Willing, Eisenhower, Peck, McIntyre, Spariing or Murphy were good bets if you went out looking for champions,

Ann Casey Johnstone or Ruth Miller were better bets.
Even if they lied about their ages, "Casey" and Mrs.
Miller couldn't qualify for the seniors' tournament because of other technical reasons. It's a good thing . . , for the

They alipped into Our Town unannounced Monday, but not unnoticed. When these girls wield an Iron, sir, you can't help but stand at attention.

Mrs. Miller, California State champion, breezed around in 71 blows. Mrs. Johnstone, a veteran Curtis Cup player who last year tagged the Western Amateur onto her list of many achievements, was "a few strokes behind."

The medal-winning score in the seniors, it should be pointed out, was a three-over-par 72. And please don't mention ladies' tees, 'cause these gals weren't having any. Thank you just the same.

The "neighborhood" they just left includes the recent Trans-Missiasippi meet at Pasadena and last week's Western Am at Eugene. Ore. They now move into the U.S. Amateur at Tacoma.

Am at Eligene, Ore. They now move into the U.S. Amateur at Tacoma.

Among the bundles Mra. Miller towed up here is Bonnie Byrne, a pretty, 20-year-old package from Chicago. "Her daddy has a small course in Chicago and he wants Bonnie to be a pro golfer. She's my protege and I'm really quite proud of her."

She alfould be. And Mr. Byrne may get his wish eyen though his daughter took up golf less than four years ago. In that time, Bonnie has whittled her handicap down to four. Miss Byrne fired an approximate 81 but, judging from the manner in which she wrinkled her nose, it was a round she obviously didn't like.

"Bonnie reached the finals of the first flight in the Western," said Mrs. Miller. "She doesn't like playing in the flights. Stifl, you have to start somewhere..."

While Mrs. Miller, from Long Beach, Calif., mentioned Bonnie's success in the Western, she neglected to mention her result. But the manner in which news gets around these days, I can tell you that Mrs. Miller reached the semi-finals. Seaffle's Anne Quast Decker won that match, 2 and 1, and went on to claim the title.

Of the three visitors, Mrs. Johnstone is perhaps best known to Canadians. She has been Marlene Stewart Streit's partner in major foursome events for the past four years. As well, the Mason City (Iowa) golfer was runnerup to Joanne Gunderson in the 1957 U.S. Amateur and has been listed among the top 10 amateurs in America in addition to her selection to the Curtis Cup team.

Dr. Ardith Hazel-Gren completed Monday's foursome. The Oak Bay member will probably agree that some of the class rubbed off. She turned in her best score in three years, teaming with Mrs. Miller in winning the friendly foursome match.

Opponents of a proposed Cadboro Bay Road improvement "haven't a leg to stand on." Reeve George Murdoch said today.

LONDON (Reuters)—Union leaders representing 650,000 Bay the Weak replying to remarks of H. W. Pawson, 2675 Cadboro Bay, who claims names from an opposing petition were struck off. He said total assessed value of land which is only to be partly charged is an unfair measure in deciding validity of the total value of property is represented by the petitioners, of whom there must be a majority.

Mr. Murdoch said he has already explained that provincial government support is required for the plan to rebuild Cadboro Bay Road, and for press claims they considered justified.

Mr. Murdoch said he has engaged counsel and is prepared to take the matter to law.

Municipal clerk E. H. Hart said only five names had been taken from the list, because they were signed improperly. Six others — dubiously — were left on even though apparently just one of the joint owners signed for joint owners.

Mr. Pawson objected to names being stricken from the petition where only one person signed for joint owners.

RED CHORUS VETOES 'RED TAPE'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Red Army Chorus wouldn't be tied up with red tape.

In spite of attempts by a Canadian official to hinder reporters, we managed to interview some of the 185 visiting Russians and they told us how much they liked Canadians.

"They are so friendly, so happy," said a stocky, clean-cut member of the chorus, speaking through Nicolai Tsvet-kov of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa.

Mr. Tsvetkov came to the rescue when reporters were virtually cut off from the Russians by obstructive Canadian officials accompanying the show.

L. P. Hodson, retired immigration agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, was heralded by publicity men as "chief interpreter" and a "brilliant linguist". He turned out to be the most uninterpretative interpreter any reporter could remember. As the Red Army performers moved into the hotel lounge, Mr. Hodson waved press and radio men aside.

"Please leave me alone," he said. "I cannot talk to you...I have too much to do." Mr. Hodson was approached later in his room. He still declined to help, but Mr. Tsvetkov from the Russian Embassy did his best to cover up for the unco-operative

'Gardens Belong to the People'

He said the Russians were enchanted with Butchart's Gardens, which they visited en route to the hotel, but were surprised that the general public had to pay to go in.
"In Russia such gardens belong to the people," said a Russian singer, speaking through Mr. Tsvetkov. "They are most beautiful and so very well kept."

The Empress lounge was crowded with guests, visitors —and a few plainclothes men—when the Russians entered at 3.15 p.m. and a little spontaneous applause was heard near the front entrance.

"Everyone has been very kind," said a Red Army bandsman. "In Vancouver we had a great audience and here it seems we have another. It is so good to know Canada."

Bill Scott, Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, congratulated the Russians on "teaching" Canadians to sing God Save the Queen and O Canada. Then he invited them to tea and crumpets in the famous Empress style.

... What Else? 'Incomparable'

By A. M. THOMAS

You never saw nor heard anything like it in your life Not, that is, if you were one of the 5,900 who Monday night packed the Memorial Arena from ceiling to floor and door to door to greet and be greeted by the Red Army Chartes

From the first impact of their majestic tributes of O Canada and The Queen to their tear-producing finale of Auld Lang Syne they held what was one of the largest indoor audiences ever to congregate in Victoria, fast to their collective seats, spellbound.

And they left behind them a memory and vision that can only be described as imperishable—a legacy that age will not tarnish, failing eyesight wither nor tax collector Steal away.

There is nothing with which to compare the Red Army

There is nothing with which to compare the Red Army ensemble of singers, instrumentalists and dancers and to attempt to do so would be invidious.

The human voice, as we all know, is a greater musical instrument than man has been able to create by artifice and the more human voices you get together the more significant will be the music you produce.

There were, by rough count, 90 voices in the chorus, but at times they sounded like a thousand, with overwhelming power and the precision of a finely balanced machine.

Defiant of Gravity'

The dancing was breath-taking — kaleidoscopic in color, graphic in story-telling and unbelievably defiant of

To this observer, however, it was the response of audience to performers that made the night unforgettable. The reaction of the thousands was as instant as it was ardent and generated an atmosphere of goodwill that ardent and generated an atmosphere of goodwill that could almost be felt.

The songs they sang ranged from stirring martial chorales to tender ballads of love, and when they roared out Tipperary they were as English as tea and kippers—in Verdi's Ernani they might have been singing at La Scala and their Auld Lang Syne came right from Glasgow.

Even to an uneducated ear the high quality of the musicianship was a tangible thing with soloists including tenors of high lyrical beauty, tenors robusto, baritones whose voices seemed smooth and rich, as costly velvet made audible and bassos of the deepest profundity.

The choral numbers were marked by crescendos and

The choral numbers were marked by crescendos and diminuendos so beautifully graduated that it was almost possible to count the decibels as they rose and fell.

In the familiar Volga Boatmen Song for example, the fortissimo passages were awesome in volume yet a few bars later the volces had faded to the calm and quiet of a single flute.

Prayers With Fervency

Politicians and churchmen may talk of Godless communism, but we found Monday night that they can pray with fervency as they revealed in Rise, Bright Sun, an ancient folk song expressing the hope for a better ancient folk song expressing the hope for a better tomorrow.

It revealed, in fact, a deep-seated religiosity, perhaps traditionally Russian, and indicating that whatever it is they worship they do so with their whole hearts.

The dancers taught us a lesson to the effect that strength and vigor can walk hand-in-hand with grace and beauty and that not all make hereics are to be found in oafish antics on a football field or a hockey surface.

It was a long program that made great demands on the performers, but their zeal never flagged and they seemed to take a sheer delight in giving pleasure.

Their consideration for their public was shown when something of a traffic jam developed at the doors as the concert was due to begin and they sang O Canada—as it has never been sung before—and God Save THEIR Queen. They held things up when they saw the audience still pouring in and repeated the tributes.

And at the end when they had given us Auld Lang Syne, arms crossed and bodies swaying, they led the audience in clapping in unison.

audience in clapping in unison.

Everybody cheered, everybody applauded, there were many moist eyes and everybody went away with a glow wondering why this intimate contact that was so well established cannot be carried into wider, more significant for man, but doubtless He didn't.

It was a great night for Victoria.

Who Can Imagine Fishless Paradise?

Fishing needs no justification, and so we fishermen seldom deign to explain our noble avocation to those untutored cynics who, heaven forbid, scoff at it.

Anyone who has felt the savage strike of a fighting bass, seen a trout thrash angrily skyward out of his element into mine, glimpsed a large shadow stalking a dancing lure, listened to the virgin stillness of nature, smelled grisp air fillered by pines and washed by the stream's

At the peak of his leap he felt the barb and with a magnificent twist, spat the plug from his mouth and got away.

"Wasn't that beautiful?" said my friend.

Fishing is pure, honest, clean, just, noble, righteous.

It is the great equalizer of mankind; the diversion of commoner and king, puglist and poet. Fishing exalts the humble and humbles the exalted.

In fact, fishing and evil plainly are opposites.

No wonder the Assyrians 4,000 years ago carved a tablet which said: "The gods do not subtract from the allowed span of men's lives the hours spent in fishing."

Address your questions to "ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Lonny Somers, age 13, of Chula Vista, Callf., I for his question:

for his question:

How did the bones get into the La Brea tar pit?

The La Brea tar pit of Los Angeles is a regular Who's Who of the Ice Age animals.

Tar acts as a preservative and the bones of countiess prehistoric animals are jumbled together and fossilized in wads of this gooey material. There are fossil bones of giant lions and tigers, wolves and bears, sloths and coyotes, the small ancestors of the modern horse and camel, the massive remains of mammonth elephants, the fangs of the saber-toothed

When California belonged to Mexico, the famous tar ranch was owned and named by the Spanish. Brea is their word for tar or pitch. Some look like solid ground, and 80 years ago, the ranch was rain forms puddles.

ment into mine, glimpsed a large shadow stalking a dancing lure, listened to the virgin stillness of nature, smelled crisp air filtered by pines and washed by the stream's own water, known the quiver of excitement in a rod bent double, heard the swish of a line, the whir of a reel—he needs no convincing.

Fisherman likewise rarely try to find the words (really, there are no adequate ones) to discuss among themselves these exquisite delights.

Each fisherman understands, and knows his fishing partner understands, and knows his fishing partner understands, and the real thrills of a day's fishing remain unspoken among the statistical reports of size and weight and lure.

Once—and only once—I went fishing with a barbarian who insisted on talking while we fished. Fishermen object to idle talk not because it might disturb the fish, but because it disturbs them.

This is the sanctuary they have chosen to escape the turbulence of civilization. Here there are no clocks, no telephones, no bills, no bosses, no deadlines and, if they're lucky, no wives. Here there is pure serenity. And if it should turn out there are no fish, there still is good company, which is to say none at all.

True Respect for Dignity

No one has more true respect for the dignity of a fighting fish than a fisherman.

Once a fishing buddy of mine teased a lunker bass too striking as surface lure. The hig fish made a truly victous attack which thrust him clean out of the water, at the peak of his leep he felt the barb and with a magnitude floor that a magnitude floor that a magnitude floor that a magnitude floor that the ratio out onto the surface of plunged heedlessly into the titer. Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the purvacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, scutal reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

In Thora Dan's holds is a drilling rig with all the necessary motors, pumps, bits and other equipment, weighing 300 tons. It was dismantled at Edmonton, packaged and ship-ped east by rail for loading aboard Thora Dan, along with 2,300 tons of supplies for the drilling crew.

Assuming the ship makes her landfall Saturday as scheduled, 16 days out of Quebec City, the dizzily-circling Arctic sun will witness rare activity next week. The crew will work round the clock to lighter the rig and supplies onto the muddy shore of this northerly Northwest Passage where Lieut. William Parry, RN, wintered 142 years ago in his quest for the northwest water foute to China.

The rig is consigned to the Peter Bawder Drilling Co., which will drill the first well in the Arctic Islands — and probably the most northerly well ever drilled anywhere — for Dome Petroleum Co. of Calgary.

This story tickles the rugged individualist In me. It is capitalism, Canadian capital, producing not Tommy Douglas' "ragged individuals," but doing the never-done-before in an unknown corner of our country. Doing it in the hope of profit, yes — but pitting itself against the raw forces of the Arctic and equally against long economic odds, with the kind of courage our forefathers showed when they settled this country.

Even if they lick the cold and the solitude

Dome and Bawden face nine-to-one odds that they il drill a dry hole at a cost of a million dollars. If the bit smells oil, odds are fifty-to-one that there won't be chough to measure capacity. And the odds against bringing in a paying well are 500 to one.

The area is geologically favorable — salt domes, and thick sedimentary folds that could hold oil and gas. Dome did two years' geological exploration before deciding on the Big gamble, but nevertheless government geological exploration by gamble, but nevertheless government officials are surprised at the decision to drill when there already is a surplus of Alberta oil that eannot compete with Venezuelan oil in the Quebec market.

A rough calculation of transportation costs indicates Dome must keep its wellhead price down to $1 a barret—which is less than the Alberta price — to compete in Eastern Canada or Europe. This lengthens the ad-verse odds: the well must produce in the verse odds: the well must produce in the order of 500 barrels a day to pay at that price. The problem of transportation to markets presents unique difficulties: the short shipping season, and ice. Present tankers are too thin skinned to go to Winter Harbor.

A flexible underwater pipe might be laid, but it would be enormously costly. Submarine tankers for year-round under-ice service are an intriguing possibility, but not of immediate practicability. That leaves surface tankers, but adapted to a new wrinkle: the storage of oil in open, asphalt-lined pits at Winter Harbor during the winter, to be the storage of oil in open, aspiratined pits at Winter Harbor during the winter, to be transported by tankers in summer to oil storage at ice-free ports in Greenland.

But first the oil has to be found. That's what Bawden's tool pusher, three drillers and nine roughnecks—including four Eskiwill be trying to do this fall at 74 degrees north latitude.

I figure that having met them personally will give me a psychological advantage the next time I am invited out for a friendly game.

During a chat with John Gerber, I mentioned that my wife had spent about two years trying to teach me the famous "Gerber convention" that he invented.

"The good players don't use it any more," Gerber replied, and that made me feel better. Charles Goren was even more helpful. He gave me a copy of his latest bridge book with a personal inscription on the flyleaf. I intend to keep it on the table during all future games.

Perhaps they won't have to forget university after all

IS THE HIGH COST OF HIGHER EDUCATION CLOSING THE DOOR ON YOUR HOPES FOR YOUR CHILDREN?

You have added up what they can earn themselves and what you can do to help. You may even be counting on a scholarship or bursary as well. Yet it's still not enough . . .

Often the extra amount you need is heartbreakingly small. Yet it is big enough to make the difference between university and - no university. And this at a time when our youth and our country both have greater need than ever for trained minds, specialized knowledge.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA HAS TAKEN STEPS TO HELP MEET THIS MAJOR PROBLEM THROUGH SPECIAL UNIVERSITY TUITION LOANS.

Usually, these loans will be made to parents, guardians or sponsors of students attending or planning to attend Canadian universities and colleges.

They are available in amounts up to $1,000 a year through four years.

Repayment may be arranged over a flonger period than usual. In special cases, it may even be extended beyond the four-year university period. In other words, these University Tuition Loans are set up on a flexible basis, on relatively liberal terms, to permit as many people as possible to take advantage of them.

A ROYAL BANK OF CANADA UNIVERSITY TUITION LOAN MAY BE THE ANSWER TO YOUR PROBLEM.

We believe this supplementary financial help will keep the door to the university open for many parents who are wondering if higher education for their children is beyond their reach. The Royal Bank, and your Royal Bank manager, share your concern in this personal and national problem. We invite you to come in and see whether a Royal Bank University Tuition Loan may not be the solution.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Letters to sports departments are usually re-Letters to sports departments are usually received with something less than ecstacy. Invariably partisan they generally conclude with cheerful suggestions like "Drop dead, Bud, you know Mantle ain't as good as Ruth."

Most times the inclination is to tell the authors where to drop. Some days, though, the moon is full of blue cheese, little girls are never naughty and taxes are cut. We get letters from people who don't necessarily want to see sports writers eaten alive.

Daniel McWilliams, school principal, Winnipeg, is an example of a man not mad at anybody.

A recent visitor to our "beautiful and friendly city" with his wife and son, Bob, Mr. McWilliams toddled up to the Canadian Legion Junior Olympic track meet at Victoria High School.

He writes: ". . I would like to say a few words in commendation of the marvellous job being done to rebuild track and field by your Canadian Legion branch and its handful of willing helpers.

"We enjoyed the competition and were impressed by the calibre of young athletes . . . also by the enthusiasm of hard-working people like (Bill) Garner, (Jack) Sargent, (Terry) Tobacco, (Dave) Jones and (Bob) Hutchison.

"I was just as impressed with the efforts of gracious lady assistants . . they were as efficient as the men. The work these adults are doing with the young people impressed me deeply because in Winnipeg we are trying to do the same thing for our youngsters."

Why Pay Rent for What We Own?

Space prohibits total reproduction of Mr. McWilliams' er. But "at the risk of being told to mind my own business." he raises these important points:

"Why do civic and provincial officials allow these willing workers to struggle along, not only without help, but even in some cases against unnecessary obstacles?

"Why should the Legion doing a worthwhile job . . . have to pay for the use of school facilities (the track) which are already the property of citizens who are using them?"

(Strictly hypothesis but the School Board answer probably contains the words "maintenance," closely followed by

Mr. McWilliams goes on: "I have noticed that there is a Mr. McWilliams goes on: "I have noticed that there is a natural obstacle peculiar to your area ..., the ferry to Vancouver. (Wait until Bennett hears this.) Does any government department offer assistance in getting these young athletes across to Vancouver to compete? . . If you are not proud of your youngsters and do not think they are worth helping you are very wrong."

(You can tell Mr. McWilliams comes from eastern Cantal Cantal Called Called

The Red Army Chorus wouldn't be tied up with red tape.

In spite of attempts by a Canadian official to hinder reporters, we managed to interview some of the 185 visiting Russians and they told us how much they liked Canadians.

"They are so friendly, so happy," said a stocky, cleancut member of the chorus, speaking through Nicolai Tsvetkov of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa.

Mr. Tsvetkov came to the rescue when reporters were virtually cut off from the Russians by obstructive Cana-dian officials accompanying the show.

L. P. Hodson, retired immigration agent for the Cana-dian Pacific Railway, was heralded by publicity men as "chief interpreter" and a "brilliant linguist."

He turned out to be the most uninterpretative interpreter any reporter could remember. As the Red Army performers moved into the hotel lounge, Mr. Hodson waved press and radio men aside.

"Please leave me alone," he said. "I cannot talk to you—I have too much to do."

Mr. Hodson was approached later in his room. He still declined to help, but Mr. Tsvetkov from the Russian Embassy did his best to cover up for the unco-operative

'Gardens Belong to the People'

He said the Russians were enchanted with Butchart's Gardens, which they visited en route to the hotel, but were surprised that the general public had to pay to go in.

"In Russia such gardens belong to the people," said a Russian singer, speaking through Mr. Tsvetkov. "They are most beautiful and so very well kept."

near the fiont entrance.

"Everyone has been very kind," said a Red Army bandsman. "In Vancouver we had a great audience and here it seems we have another. It is so good to know Canada."

Bill Scott, Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, congratulated the Russians on "teaching" Canadians to sing God Save the Queen and O Canada. Then he invited them to tea and crumpets in the famous Empress style.

The Russians smiled and shook their heads. They had not then had lunch and wanted something more solid than crumpet, I learned, is called "lepyawshka."

Mr. Tsvetkov said the Russians were anxious to eat and drink Canadian style.

"They do not want vodka," he said. "They would rather have rye and scotch while in Canada—and they are partial to Cahadian wheat cakes."

In the Empress cocktail lounge, a group of Russians

In Victoria it seemed the only misunderstanding was between Canadian reporters and Canadian officials.

"What can you ask them, anyway?" asked Mr. Hodson, the "interpreter." "They'll just say they're having a fine time and that everything is just wonderful."

But the Russians didn't feel that way about it. They obviously wanted to talk and to ask questions.

"Is there much unemployment in Canada?" asked one. When told there was, he replied: "In Russia we have full employment now and we need more skilled labor."

Mr. Tsvetkov revealed that each member of the Red Army Chorus has four tons of baggage and equipment and carries a 127-volt electric iron.

"They all iron their own clothes," he said.

Madame Olga Alexandrov, wife of the director-general, was described as "mother" to the travelling soldiers, but she was unavailable for interview.

"She looks after the men's welfare," Mr. Tsvetkov said, "and keeps an eye on their wardrobes. She is a very wonderful person."

Arena Rafters Ring With Rousing Russian Routines

It was probably the most memorable performance ever seen in Victoria and there was no mistaking the enthusiasm of the 5,900 men, women and children held spellbound by the brilliant Red Army singers, dancers and musicians in the flood-lit Me-morial Arena. Photo shows orchestra playing on stage while Russian dancers perform a vigorous soldiers' dance behind the nimble white-hatted chef

If great-grandma could see some of the things children are going around in these days—she'd flip.

Mrs. Henry Yole, 1155 Vista Heights, nearly flipped, too, when she found her two-year-old son Dean had made at least seven bumpy revolutions in her electric laundry wrong side of the dryer's glass door, sealed in, with the heat getting hotter and hotter. He made the save, but not before the little fellow had made—judging from the thumps—at least seven round trips.

Mrs. Yole said the boy didn't cry, "but he didn't say anything, either. He was stunned," when her husband brought him upstairs.

He had only two small bruises on his back.

But it won't happen again: the laundry room door has a new fastener near the ceil-ing where it can't be reached by Dean or his older brother and sister; the dryer has been wired by Mr. Yole, an electrician, with a separate switch so that it does not go on when only the door is closed, as before

Tempers Flare On Both Sides (Times News Services)

The Western powers protested sharply to Soviet authorities today against the increasing Communist restrictions splitting East and West Berlin and began study of retaliatory measures to back up their words city.

With tempers flaring on along the 25-mile zonal border, both sides of the border dividing Berlin, Mayor Willy Brandt called West Berliners to a mass protest demonstration outside city hall Wednes day.

He lasted the call after the points.

Communists turned out troops and tanks to enforce a new Iron Curtain across Berlin.

Mean time, representatives of the three Western powers met in Washington to consider counter-measures to be recommended to their governments for action. These may include trade restrictions and travel bans of East Germans to Western countries.

LONDON (UPI)—Moscow radio said East Germany will reopen its borders "when peaceful settlement with Germany is reached."

Mayor Tom Alsbury today called upon citizens to help police e o m b at a "unatic fringe" among young people. He said police need she support of parents to end an outbreak of senseless, unprovoked attacks on innocent people by marauding youths.

In recent weeks, scores of children and adults have been attacked on city streets. A gang of six teen-agers inflicted several cigarette burns on a youngster they overpowered one afternoon last week.

The wave of violence has prompted Police Chief George Archer to apply for a helicopter, and transistor radios to increase the mobility of the police force.
